Origin and Background: Maiya was a single mother trying to raise her son in Empire City. On what little she could earn added to what she got from welfare. Unfortunately she was tricked by GENOME into getting some of their "pre-natal care drugs". The money was good. Tadoka was born pre-mature and a bit small. But in his pre-teen years became an avid skate boarder and played a lot of different sports with kids in the neighborhood. The only side effect from the GENOM that was ever recorded with him was the fact that his brown eyes that he was born with turned bright blue at age 12. Since that seemed to be the only change, GENOM stopped watching. Recently Tadoka was on his way home when he encountered what the police later called a "Booster Party gone bad" He was escorted home. The next morning he awoke to find himself not quite himself. He had grown overnight! His mother enraged at finding a stranger in her home cahsed him out. Now he spends some days in shelters or just hiding on the street as he learns to control his new powers. He has also had to run from what he calls "men in black" who seem to know a lot about him and his mother. Maybe the Protectors can help?

It is indeed likely that GENOM was indeed watching the children of these mothers for a time but when it seemed all were just healthy children and that the worse effects were only limited to the mothers... GENOM stopped paying attention... maybe.

Personality and Character Traits: Longshadow possesses the ability to grow in height. While larger he seems to be a bit more resistant to injury. So far the tallest he has reached is 18' in height. He also has what he calls x-ray hearing. His sense of hearing is very acute.
